MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIRMAN

ETAN MIRWIS

Great things are happening in the Brays Oaks Management District this summer. The District created a public safety committee headed by our own board member, Starla Turnbo, whose background in real estate management should prove to be an asset as we work with apartment managers throughout the District. Statistics provided by the Houston Police Department show an overall downward trend in crime in our area. Specifically, there has been a dramatic drop in shoplifting incidents--by nearly a third over last year.

That means that our proactive efforts to improve public safety for both the residents and businesses are really paying off, but it doesn't mean our work is done.

Simple improvements like additional lighting and trimming hedges can make a difference in the opportunity for criminal activity. The Management District is committed to finding creative ways to educate business owners on crime prevention.

In June, the Reserve at Creek Bend became the first Brays Oaks-area apartment complex to receive the Blue Star certification by the Houston Police Department, passing a rigid inspection by its Apartment Enforcement Unit. Attaining this designation is a first step toward a significant reduction in crime in the area, but it also can be a powerful attraction for prospective tenants.

Improving public safety is a key element in the District's mission to provide a quality environment for both residents and business owners, and in fact, is critical to new business development.

There are also some new developments regarding new businesses opening up in the community.

It would be premature to discuss these before the ink is dry, so let's keep the details under wraps until a future issue of this newsletter.

In the meantime, if you or your organization has good news to share, ideas worth developing, or if you just want to comment on what's happening within the District, we'd love to hear from you.

Sincerely yours,

Etan Mirwis

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR DAVID HAWES

In his message, our Chairman, alluded to exciting new developments on the horizon, and I'm very pleased to tell you about a few of those that will have a tremendous impact on the Brays Oaks community.

First, we have been working closely with the administration of Houston Community College to bring one of their campuses to the Brays Oaks area—a commitment in the bond package that provides for a $12 million workforce education facility. And, if we can muster up enough land, we are looking at the possibility of locating a 10,000-student international campus within our District.

I can't begin to tell you what a coup that would be for our community, but small or large, having an HCC campus within our borders will be an economic incubator that will spur job growth and new businesses for years to come.

Business development is only one of the commitments your District and its board have made, but we also need the transportation infrastructure in place to support the growth we envision. Currently, we are working with Metro on the proposed expansion of the light rail line along 90A/South Main, which is the southern edge of the District. Part of our discussion with them has centered on rail alignment, where the stations should be located, and how to advance this plan so that commuters who live within our community will have affordable, dependable mass transit.

We're also mindful that not everyone always travels by car, bus or light rail. Plans for new hike-and-bike trails are also in place so that pedestrians have a safe way to traverse the community and families with young children can enjoy outings in the fresh air.

All of this is part of our master plan for a better Brays Oaks Management District—a unique part of the city with a thriving business climate and a higher quality of life. Your thoughts and suggestions on any improvements by the District are encouraged and welcomed.

Sincerely yours,

David Hawes

SHOPLIFTING AND VIOLENT CRIMES “TREND DOWN IN BOMD”

Comparing statistics on a month-by-month basis, the number of burglaries of motor vehicles (BMVs) decreased by 26% between March and April of this year. Of the 69 BMVs in April, nearly half (30) occurred in apartment complexes, while 22 were in business parking lots and the other 17 were in single-family residential neighborhoods. The area around the Southwest Freeway and Belfort had the most reported BMVs.

Year-to-year comparisons for the first four months showed a 10% increase in auto thefts and a 36% increase in robberies, even though there was a 6% decrease in the latter from March to April 2012. Apartment parking lots and public streets in the South Meadow area (S. Gessner and W. Belfort) and the Raydell area (S. Braeswood and Sapling Way) were the setting for the most reported robberies. Apartment complexes in the Raydell area were also the site of the most auto thefts.

The new Public Safety Committee, organized by the District and headed by board member Starla Turnbo, is partnering with the managers of apartment complexes to address this issue in the areas with the highest population density and greatest incidence of criminal offenses, Rodriguez said.

There is good news for residents and businesses of the Brays Oaks Management District (BOMD), according to new crime data released by analysts from the Houston Police Department.

For the first four months of 2012 (January to April), violent crimes in BOMD decreased by 2% compared to 2011, with 21 fewer incidents. The number of simple assaults year-to-year also dropped 11%. The best news for local businesses is that shoplifting incidents fell by 28% compared to the previous year. However, overall, other non-violent crimes increased by 9%.

While the number of arsons increased from two to three incidents, representing a 50% increase, it is more accurate to say that the most dramatic jump in non-violent crimes occurred in the category of home burglaries. These increased from 250 to 318 for the same period year-to-year, representing a 27% increase. In the month of April alone, 52 of the 82 reported burglaries occurred in apartments and condominium complexes. The majority of burglaries perpetrated in single-family homes during April occurred primarily in the Westbury subdivision, according to the report.

“THESE MONTHLY CRIME ANALYSIS REPORTS WILL SHOW US EXACTLY WHERE CERTAIN CRIMES ARE TRENDING, DOWN TO THE DAYS OF THE WEEK AND TIMES OF DAY. THIS WILL ALLOW US TO TARGET OUR RESOURCES—SUCH AS MOBILE SURVEILLANCE CAMERAS—MORE EFFECTIVELY TO PREVENT THESE CRIMES FROM HAPPENING.”

RESERVE AT CREEKBEND EARNS

HPD'S BLUE STAR CERTIFICATION

GETTING A BLUE STAR MEANS A SAFER LIVING ENVIRONMENT FOR RESIDENTS OF THE RESERVE AT CREEKBEND.

The apartment complex has attained Blue Star certification awarded by the Houston Police Department's Apartment Enforcement Unit. The Blue Star Program is a partnership between law enforcement, apartment owners/managers, and residents to reduce crime and improve the quality of life in multi-family communities.

The Reserve at Creekbend is the first property in the Brays Oaks area to achieve this designation, police said in a press release prior to a June 28 safety event for residents. The safety event was the last of three phases in the certification process.

In order to become certified, properties and their managers must complete day-long training, meet minimum Crime Prevention through Environmental Design (CPTED) requirements, and conduct a resident safety training. During the CPTED survey, officers assess such things as lighting, perimeter fencing, landscaping, on-site security crime prevention efforts, and tenant screening procedures. The management of the complex at 7600 Creekbend has been working toward this goal for the past six years.

Richard Rodriguez, Brays Oaks Management District, says he is working developing a workshop for apartment owner and managers, with instruction by other owners who have turned their properties around using CPTED methods and limited resources. The workshop will cover budgets and other internal mechanisms to help owners improve their operations for a successful complex.

Plant it Forward

HELPING REFUGEES LAUNCH FARMING BUSINESSES

Kale and turnips are among a variety of vegetables making a difference in the lives of 12 refugees from the African Congo who are now living in Southwest Houston. "The plan is to help refugees who were farmers in their home country to develop small farming businesses in Houston," said Teresa O'Donnell, executive director of the non-profit organization, Plant It Forward Farms. It's a concept that arose when her employer, a software company, started looking for a way to give back to the community, she added.

On Saturday, July 14, about 40 volunteers showed up to help build a model training farm on one of three acres leased from the Braeswood Assembly of God Church near the corner of Willowbend and Fondren. In the heat of an early morning, workers laid out rows of cardboard framed with cinder blocks and filled in the raised beds with organic soil. In the aisles between, they laid a mulch-covered walkway.

This fall, when the training farm is bearing leafy greens and root vegetables, all volunteers will receive a pound of free produce in exchange for their willingness to get a little dirty in the July sun. Ray Sher, farm manager, says the yield will include endive, collards, mustard greens, lettuce, beets, carrots, radishes, broccoli, cauliflower, bok choy and two kinds of peas—all of which will end up for sale in local farmers' markets. No chemicals will ever touch any of it, O'Donnell said.

Plant It Forward's website, www.Plant-it-Forward.org, not only has more information now, but will soon feature veggie-based recipes as well.

Community

To be considered, refugees go through an interview process and nine months of training to become a certified Plant It Forward farmer and have the opportunity to cultivate a small urban farm like this one.

GARDEN ADVOCATE RECEIVES FLAG FROM U.S. CAPITOL

Rita Woodward

GARDEN ADVOCATE

"I worked so hard for this park for so many years. This is the vision that I had," Woodward said. "You can find a purpose and a project. One person can make a difference."

In front of Westbury High School in the garden she helped create, Rita Woodward, a Brays Oaks community advocate, was honored with a flag that had flown over the U.S. Capitol.

On Monday, April 30, U.S. Representative Al Green presented the U.S. flag to Woodward, who spent 10 years lobbying the Houston Independent School District (HISD) for the green space now known as the Rita Woodward Environmental Nature Park.

"IT'S MUCH BETTER TO SEE A SERMON THAN TO HEAR ONE," GREEN SAID, REFERRING TO THE GARDEN AS "THE SERMON THAT RITA PREACHED." HE ALSO QUOTED GHANDI AND SAID, "WE SHOULD ALL BECOME THE CHANGE THAT WE SEEK."

State Representative Borris Miles also presented Woodward with a Texas flag, and other local, state and federal officials sent messages of their regard for her. The park was formerly the site of HISD's Oceanography Center, built in the late 1960s, and then it became the Living Resource Center, a warehouse for biology specimens. When the science center's function was moved to a different location, the building on the corner of Chimney Rock and Gasmer fell into disrepair.

That's when Woodward, now 84, began her campaign to acquire and renovate the space in front of the high school. It only took her 10 years to convince HISD officials to donate the land and to round up contributions to beautify it with roses, other landscaping and a mosaic "W" at the base of the school's flagpole. Donations came from local businesses, residents and from the fund-raising efforts of the Friends of Westbury High School Foundation that Woodward founded in 1992.

Trees for Houston

TRIBUTE GROVE

The Willow Waterhole Nature Reserve in Westbury has been chosen as the site of Trees for Houston's Tribute Grove for this year.

A Tribute Grove is a designated area in which donors can donate trees in commemoration of special occasions, honor a friend or family member, or make a memorial gift. Planting will start in the fall of 2012; the number of trees in the grove is determined by the number of donations.

If you have wanted to make a donation to Trees for Houston, now is a good time as the trees will be planted in our neighborhood! Check out www.TreesForHouston.org for more information.

US90A Railroad Quiet Zone

Can you hear the quiet? On May 16, 2012 a "Railroad Quiet Zone" went into effect for the Union Pacific Railroad tracks adjacent to US90A / South Main from the Houston city limits eastward to South Post Oak, including the railroad crossings at S. Gessner, Fondren, Haviland, Hillcroft, and Chimney Rock. The new Quiet Zone means that the trains do not blow their warning horns during road crossings unless needed for safety reasons. The Quiet Zone was implemented by the city of Houston at the request of the Westbury SuperNeighborhood.
